Dear Mr. Curtis:

Thank you for your recent letter concerning

[Redacted]

[Redacted] was, as you note, a candidate for employment in early 1954. He appeared sufficiently promising to be invited to Washington for intensive screening in prospect of a quite difficult and challenging assignment. Upon conclusion of examination of his qualifications, it was determined that he did not possess all of the skills and qualities required. Through a regrettable lapse, [Redacted] was not notified of this determination.

We have reconsidered [Redacted] qualifications in light of our present personnel requirements and find no immediate prospects of interest for him. A copy of our letter advising [Redacted] of this fact is enclosed.
